

```
1 export const handler = async () => {
2   const table = process.env.RESULTS_TABLE_NAME;           // load results table name from env
3   const url = process.env.IMAGE_PROCESSING_URL;           // load request URL form env
4   const timestamp = new Date();                           // store the timestamp
5
6   try {
7     const response = await fetch(url);                     // send request for image processing
8     const item = { timestamp, ...response };               // prepare result to save
9     await database.put(table, item);                       // persist the result
10    return 200;                                             // return successfully
11  } catch (error) {
12    // ...                                                 // handle error
13    return 500;                                           // return unsuccessfully
14  }
15 }
16 }
```